Don't pray for good weather, only to sit in your garage all weekend if it is, or see your of your items for sale, go to the trouble of pricing and tagging all from all over the house, break your back dragging heavy items out around your neighborhood, spend your time to create and post signs, estate or garage sale in local classifieds, spend your money to advertise your coordinating your own garage/estate sale?

Why undergo the hassle and expense of The Estate Sale Alternative™

What happens to any unsold items after the consignment period (100 days)?
 Once items have been fully discounted, they will be forfeited. At that point, title to unclaimed items passes directly to SCL and will be donated or discarded at SCL's discretion. However, with a wide array of merchandise and unusually aggressive discounting, it is unlikely for many items to survive the full length of the consignment period without being sold.

When (and how often) do I get paid?
 Statements are mailed quarterly to most consignors showing which items sold and for how much (see inset panel for Statement & Payout Schedule). Statements are not mailed to consignors if there exists less than a ninety-nine day account history, if there exists less than a $25.00 account balance, if there has been less than $25.00 of account activity over the previous quarter, or for consignors living within a five mile radius of the store. Weekdays, consigners may call or stop in the store to check the status of their account. SCL does not telephone consignors when their merchandise sells. Consignor checks are not typically cut at the store. If you are slated to receive a statement (see criteria above), a reply postcard is included for your use in requesting a payout. If not, you may request a cash payout by filling out a written request in the store, or by mailing or faxing a signed request. Checks ($25.00 or more only) are cut and mailed monthly in response to your written request. Checks requested prior to the 20th of each month are processed electronically to arrive in your home by the first Tuesday of the following month (between the 2nd and the 8th). Should you wish to redeem your payout in the form of store credit (double the cash value), you may do so at any time. Your account balance will be applied at the checkout in the store, but cannot be used to pay sales tax. Consignors with a balance less than twenty-five dollars must either use store credit or may opt to consign additional merchandise to enable their account to grow above the minimum. Your balance remains on account for ten years from the date your last item sold.

What portion of the sales price comes back to me?
 Your payout options can range from 25% to as much as 50%! As you go from Cash to Charity to Store Credit, your payout percentages increase dramatically. See inset panel for Consignment Schedule.

Are there any other fees or charges?
 SCL does not charge the consignment fees that many other consignment shops do! There is no annual consignor account fee. There is no per transaction charge to the consignor (although a buyers fee may apply). There is no cleaning charge. There is a nominal pickup charge (described above), and there is a statement/check preparation fee of $4.95. This fee will be waived one time in any twelve month period if you wait until the end of the consignment period (100 days) for all of your items to sell. This charge is designed to encourage consignors to get one lump-sum check once all their items have sold. If you do so, you will not incur this fee.

What exactly does Consign mean?
 The Consignment Agreement is intended to define the arrangement through which items are consigned for resale. It is an important document which helps to protect the interests of both Consignor (you) and Consignee (SCL). Set firmly in legalese, it can appear complicated, but it really isn't! The information above is intended to help you understand the agreement. It is not, however, intended to be a substitute for this agreement, and in case of need for any further clarity, please refer directly to the Consignment Agreement.

Questions & Answers to your Consignment Agreement

How do my items get from my home into your store?
 Second's City®, LLC., (SCL) offers a convenient service for pickup right at your home. We simply request that you have your items neatly stacked in an easily accessible area, such as your garage. You will be given a receipt for your merchandise when it is picked up so you can track what sells and for how much. There is a nominal pickup charge which is deducted from the cash portion of your percentage of the proceeds. You may avoid this charge by arranging to bring your items directly to the store. When doing so, please be sure to call the store first to make an appointment.

How soon are items put onto the retail floor for sale?
 We endeavor to place all items on the sales floor as soon as possible. We clean most items first and may even paint, stain, or repair selected items. You agree to allow us to refurbish your items in any way that we may deem suitable or appropriate to try to enhance their value, and we may take up to a maximum of ninety days to do this. SCL consigns most types of merchandise with the exception of clothing and major appliances. Items which, in the opinion of SCL, do not qualify for a minimum starting price of five dollars will be deemed non-consignable and treated as a donation to the store. You will find an in-depth description and commentary on the various types of consignment that SCL accepts in the centerfold of this booklet.

How is the retail price determined?
 It is important that you understand that all resale items in the store are aggressively priced to sell quickly and are marked down 1% for each day that they sit on the sales floor. SCL has exclusive authority to set the beginning sales price for your items. However, you may choose to set the starting price on any of your items for which you place a value of $100.00 or more. This must be communicated with the store in writing on your Consignor Agreement so that store personnel have this information as your merchandise is brought into the store. We will honor, at a minimum, the starting prices set by you on such items, but may choose to start items higher than this price (to our mutual benefit). Regardless, the 1% daily discount still applies, and your payout is figured from the selling price after this discount. The store may, from time to time, advertise even greater retail discounts, but SCL completely bears this cost as your payout will not be negatively affected by such optional additional discounts.

Who owns the items while they are in the store?
 Until such time as a customer purchases your consigned item (or places it in layaway), you retain full title to any merchandise which you have consigned with SCL. For any reason whatsoever, you may choose to remove your items from consignment with SCL at no charge. Should you choose to do so, you must make arrangements to remove these items from SCL's retail location during regular store hours, and you bear the entire cost of doing so.

Before we answer the question at hand, let's address two important concepts: First, just about everything sells eventually. Second, most things sell at relatively low prices. This means that we will likely be able to accept most items that you are looking to get rid of, and they will probably all sell, although often at prices less than you may expect. It can work the other way, however, since we get such a volume of people through the store to view your items, you may sometimes actually be surprised at how much they sell for. One thing is for certain – with the price dropping each day it's a gamble from the points of view of both the customer and the consignor. We can guess, but no one ever knows for sure what something will sell for until the cash registers drawer rings open.

Furthermore, we endeavor to make the starting prices themselves on the lower side. Second's City® is about recycling merchandise back into the community quickly, and inventory turns are integral to accomplishing this. We price each item with the expectation of selling it within ten days. Although the inventory does not indeed turn quite this fast, this pricing philosophy speaks to how we come up with the starting prices on your items. We also factor into the starting price the size and appeal of each item. Items that take less floor space or may appeal to a broader audience may command higher starting prices.

WHAT TYPES OF MERCHANDISE DOES SECONDS CITY® ACCEPT? WHAT SELLS WELL?

As you will see, by accepting your merchandise on consignment, Second's City®, LLC., undertakes many responsibilities, including moving, storing, cleaning, disinfesting, tagging, merchandising, marketing, selling, and accounting for your items. Your responsibility, however, is singular! We ask only that you read and understand this booklet and the consignment agreement to which it refers, and that you not allow yourself to proceed until you have a satisfactory understanding and comfort level for just how we operate. Our consignment arrangement is quite unique and narrowly focused on providing a service for those with very specific needs. We are fully aware that it is not for everybody – it may not be for you. It should be noted that our service is best suited to those for whom the proceeds represent the smallest concern. There is certainly no shame or sin in wanting to get the most money for your second-hand merchandise. Second's City® is simply not the place to achieve this goal. Nonetheless, if your needs do align with the services that we are able to provide, the convenience factor can be considerable.

ACCEPTED, BUT NOT CONSIDERED

These category descriptions are intended to provide you with a feel for what we consign and which items we accept and which items we do not accept. We are able to accept, please keep the information above constantly in mind.

Larger items (i.e. couches, sectionals) or those more specialized or specific in their use (infant furniture, home health care items, gun racks) are priced lower to help them move out faster! Finally, seasonally factor this into your expectations. Patio furniture, bicycles, and golf clubs are examples of items that do not sell well at any price in the fall and winter. The value of merchandise with a holiday theme drops significantly immediately after the holiday passes. You'll notice in the category descriptions located inside the centerfold of this booklet that certain items are accepted on a non-consignment basis only when received in certain months and that it is your responsibility to be aware of this before delivery of your items to the store. Items accepted on a non-consigned basis will net you, the consignor, no proceeds from their sale whereas they are treated strictly as a donation to the store. We wish our consignor base to fully understand how we operate and to have properly aligned expectations with the service that we are able to provide. As you read our commentary about the different categories of merchandise we are able to accept, please

ANTIQUES

Although we are clearly not an antique store, you will usually find about 5 to 10% of the store is populated with antique merchandise. These items sell very well at or below market prices. Again, consignors are cautioned to exercise their option to work with SCL personnel to establish a starting price they are comfortable with for any item of considerable potential value.

APPLIANCES

We accept most types of smaller kitchen and household appliances providing that they are in full working condition. We may even accept newer medium-sized or apartment-sized refrigerators and freezers. We do not accept, however, the more conventional-sized larger appliances such as refrigerators, freezers, stoves, washers and dryers. Being a resale store, we are normally unable to offer our customers return privileges for their purchases. Appliances generally represent an exception to this policy. Customers are provided a seven day return privilege so that they may adequately test their purchase. If they return the product as non-functional within the time allotted, the consignor's account is debited and the item is discarded without the consignor being contacted (with consignors numbering in the thousands, store personnel are unable to telephone consignors). Please be aware of this policy before consigning your appliances with Second& City.

ARTWORK

The store's walls are filled with artwork of all types and styles. You will find oils, watercolors, etchings, lithographs and prints of varying levels of style and taste. Additionally, you will find many other unique kinds of artwork including sculptures, pottery, stained glass, etc. The larger wall-hung pieces of art do not do well because they require large walls on which to be hung atypical of the homes in the surrounding area of the store. Traditionally expensive pieces do not sell for anywhere near their original value (if art is said to appreciate, at Second& City, it only does so in the hearts and minds of the buyers, not necessarily in the price they are willing to pay). Needlepoint, paint-by-numbers and hook-rug pictures are non-consignable.

BEDROOM SETS

A complete set (dresser, mirror, highboy, nightstand[s]) is often kept together for thirty days. After that, the pieces may be split and sold separately. Certain nicer or unique sets are never split up. Customers are given the option of purchasing the headboard with the set (if it came with one), but do not have to do so. Many people want a different size headboard and therefore leave it behind. Accordingly, headboards do not always sell regardless of condition.

EXERCISE EQUIPMENT

Just about everyone has, at one time or another, succumbed to a TV advertisement and purchased one of those miracle machines only to see them become dust collectors (or a place to hang one's clothes). As such, exercise equipment in perfect condition comes to the store in abundance and sells for a slight fraction of the original price. Because of the size of these items, we no longer consign them but will accept them as donations to the store. We will remove them from your home along with your other merchandise. Even then, we only accept units that need no assembly/disassembly (exception: newer treadmills are consignable).

JEWELRY

We do not accept jewelry because we have no appropriate way to merchandise it or to keep it secure. Costume jewelry may be donated to the store if you wish, as people do enjoy picking up necklaces, earrings, broaches and bracelets, for between 50¢ to $5.00.

KNICK-KNACKS & ACCESSORIES

We accept all kinds of miscellaneous items such as figurines, music boxes, decorative plates, wine racks, candlesticks, silverplate, sterling, etc. The store's customer base seems to appreciate the array of knick-knacks and accessories available, and they tend to sell especially well. The more unique, the better.

LIGHT FIXTURES, HANGING

We hang chandeliers and various light fixtures from the ceiling in the store. We try to light them whenever possible as that helps them get noticed. They don't sell for a lot, but the nicer, more unique ones tend to sell faster. The store does not make enough on a light fixture to justify buying new bulbs. Therefore, be sure to include your bulbs if you would like us to display it lit in the store. We do not sell ceiling fans or flush mount fixtures as we have no way to properly display them. If you include these items with your merchandise, they will be discarded.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

These items seem to sell relatively well, although they are received less frequently at the store. The prices of most musical instruments through traditional merchants (new and used) are remarkably high and our customers react swiftly to the bargain prices available on these items when in the store.

OFFICE EQUIPMENT

The store caters primarily to home furnishings, although there is some minor crossover into some home/office or business-related items. The larger desk units (unless highly attractive and in wonderful condition) do not sell as well as smaller desks simply by virtue of their size in contrast to the size of the majority of homes in the immediate vicinity of the store. Other business equipment sells well only if it is able to appeal

BEDS

Beds are broken down into three parts by the store: Headboard/footboard, Mattress/box, Hollywood frame. There is no room in the store to set up beds completely. Sometimes we can display the headboard with the matching bedroom set by leaning it upon the mirrored dresser. Otherwise, headboards are kept in the back and shown to customers upon request. In the back, the price does not drop each day, but after 100 days it is discarded if it does not sell. Headboards that arrive separate from a bedroom set may be immediately discarded at the store's discretion. Mattresses, box springs and the metal Hollywood bed frames underneath them are non-consignable items. We will remove them from your home in most instances, but you will not realize any of the proceeds from them. There is an incredibly low demand for waterbeds; as such they are not consigned under any circumstances.

BICYCLES (SEE SEASONAL)

Only bicycles in excellent condition are accepted on consignment. Even these sell for only a small fraction of the price for a new bicycle. Please note that from August through March, bicycles are accepted only on a non-consigned basis.

CHAIRS: DINING ROOM, KITCHEN, MISC.

Chairs by themselves (unless antique or unique) do rather poorly, while full sets of four, six or eight attract more interest. Space (and the fact that chairs, in general, are not stackable) forces us to price them low, and condition is a major factor. Single chairs, depending on condition, may be discarded at store's discretion.

CHAIRS, LIVING ROOM UPHOLSTERED

This is a hard category to describe on paper. Good, clean, newer upholstered chairs will often sell well. Wood-armed, gold, orange or lime green chairs will not even sell for $5.00 regardless of what you may have paid 20 years ago! These types of chairs seldom even approach a $100.00 starting price and are often well below $50.00. Styles in this category have changed so much that most of the older style chairs (if accepted into the store at all) are discarded before ever hitting the sales floor for lack of a market.

CHILDREN'S ITEMS

Children's items heavily populate the lower end thrift stores, and they do so at very low prices. Even so, customers are reticent to purchase items for their children which are not impeccably clean and in solid working condition. We therefore accept these items in good condition and immediately dispose of those items to a broad section of the population (e.g. a fax machine will appeal to a broader market than will a box strapping machine). Perceived availability of pieces and parts for some older business equipment significantly influences the consumer's buying decision as well as the starting price for an item.

OUTDOOR EQUIPMENT (SEE SEASONAL)

We accept merchandise such as grills, larger garden tools (rakes, picks, shovels), gas or electric garden tools, etc. All must be in good condition and full working order or they will be discarded.

PATIO FURNITURE (SEE SEASONAL)

Please note that from August through March, patio furniture is accepted only on a non-consigned basis.

PUZZLES & GAMES

Only puzzles and games that are 100% complete and in their original packaging may be consigned at our discretion.

RUGS

The most important item to note regarding rugs is that they are incredibly difficult to merchandise in the store. Placing them on the floor just gets them dirty, and people accidentally kick off the price tag. Laying them across couches looks sloppy and makes it difficult for potential buyers to sit on the couch. Accordingly, rugs are something we only put out two to three at a time. Even then, we intentionally put very low starting prices on them to encourage their swift departure from the store. Rugs are only accepted when they have no stains, tears or missing or damaged fringe.

RECLINERS

When in proper working condition, recliners do sell well, albeit for much less than the price paid new. Well known names such as La-Z-Boy, Broyhill and Lane also enhance the value of the item in the consumers' minds. Considering the amount of time a person may spend in their recliner, spots or stains will certainly and markedly further reduce the perceived value of the chair.

SEASONAL MERCHANDISE

Air conditioners simply do not sell in December; Heaters do not sell in July. Therefore, items out of season may be accepted, but not consigned. To be consigned, warm weather merchandise must be brought in April through July. To be consigned, cold weather merchandise must be brought in September through January. To be consigned, Christmas merchandise must be brought in September or October. To be consigned, Halloween merchandise must be brought in August or September. Seasonal merchandise brought into the store any other times than those listed above will be placed in storage until the appropriate time, when it will be sold on a nonconsigned basis. Items sold on a non-consigned basis bring no proceeds to the would-be consignor.

which are outdated or not an appropriate fit for the store. Manufacturers of car seats, boosters, highchairs, strollers, cribs, changing tables, etc., will often replace damaged pieces and parts at no charge to maintain their image with consumers. Call the various manufacturers of your items and obtain these parts before consigning them with the store. We will be more likely to accept them, and they will be more likely to sell at a higher price. Strollers and outside play sets are treated as seasonal and as such are accepted on a consignment basis only between April and July (see Seasonal).

CLOTHING, DRAPERY, LINEN

SCL does not accept clothing or drapery of any kind. We may, on occasion, accept linen when it is especially nice or new in its original packaging.

COLLECTIBLES

If we've learned anything, it's that everybody collects something. Collectors abound on more types of merchandise than one could ever imagine. Please know that there is no way for store personnel to be learned on all things collectible – what's more, we profess to hold no specific knowledge on the value of your items. We strongly encourage you to exercise your right to establish the starting price on any items which you'd like to see start higher than $100.00. On items less than that, but which hold some collectible value, please feel free to share your feelings with store personnel as soon as your items reach the store. Please also remember that any damage to a collectible piece (nicks, chips, fading, paint splatter) significantly reduces its perceived value and the starting price we are willing to put on it.

COMPUTER HARDWARE & SOFTWARE

We accept IBM compatible personal computers with a Pentium processor or better provided that they are in full working condition. All plugs, cords and cables must be included. We also accept word processors and electric typewriters (no manual). We do not accept most word processors or typewriters. We do accept laser and inkjet printers (no dot-matrix), however, they do not sell well. Software does surprisingly well – the newer, the better, and the cleaner the packaging, the better. Please clear off any personal information from the hard drive of your PC – we do not do it for you.

COUCHES, LOVESEATS, SECTIONALS

We accept most furniture that is in good condition – no rips, tears, stains or wear of any significance. We do not accept any wood-armed pieces unless it is exceptional. Nicer sets are often kept together for 30 days before we will sell them separately. Taking up as much floor space as they do, pieces in this category tend to be priced even lower to help them move faster. Sectionals are even larger yet, and require an even lower starting price considering the space required to sell them. The store usually sells 12-15 couches per week, and with more coming in all the time, we have to keep them moving rapidly.

SEWING MACHINES

Sewing machines tend to fall into three distinct categories. The vast majority are in the older, more traditional cabinetry and simply do not sell well. We no longer accept these into the store. We do accept portable machines when complete and in their own cases as well as the older Treadle models with the wrought-iron foot propelled base. These are sought after primarily for decorative purposes.

SPORTS EQUIPMENT

We accept a variety of different types of sporting equipment (in good condition) including: Baseball gloves, Archers' bows, Punching bags, Poker tables, Bumper-pool, tables, Ping-pong tables. Important note: Ping-pong tables are not displayed due to their size. Using a sign in the store, we offer them for sale from between $29.95 – 69.95, based on style and condition. Standard-sized pool tables are not accepted into the store as they are simply too large and too cumbersome to move and setup.

STEREO CONSOLES

Unless there is something extra special about yours, these floor model stereophonic units from the 1960-70's are not something that we are able to consign. This is simply no resale market for them today, even when they are in full working condition. Under certain circumstances, we may be able to remove non-consignable items from your home for you for a nominal charge.

STORAGE CABINETS

Although more commonly a warm weather item, storage-related furniture is quite popular, since most people are inherently pack-rats and need a place to store their stuff. We have found that the more shelves incorporated into the piece, the better.

TABLE SETS, DINING ROOM

Sets in good condition or better are accepted anytime. Bear in mind, however, that they are somewhat seasonal. Sets do not sell well in the warmer months, and they do the best in the Fall as people are preparing their homes for the holidays. Sets with less than four chairs do not sell nearly as well as those with four, six or eight chairs. We display sets with only one chair on top of the table and a sign declaring how many chairs and/or leaves come with the set.

TABLE SETS, KITCHEN

Sets in good condition or better

CURIO CABINETS

Furniture and items of a utilitarian nature seem to sell especially quickly. The opposite is true of luxury items. Because people do not truly need them, they are more apt to be willing to wait it out to get a better price. Curio cabinets are not a necessity, and as such, may sell for significantly less than the equivalent new price even if the item is in excellent condition.

END TABLES

Certain newer, more modern end tables do fairly well, selling from between $25-50, as do older versions of higher quality and solid wood. Those made of particle board or early American styles 20-60 years old tend to sell for $5-15 or not at all. We reserve the right to discard end tables that we do not feel meet the need of the store's shoppers.

ELECTRONICS, AUDIO & VIDEO

We accept most electronic items providing that they are in full working condition. Types of electronics include televisions, stereo systems and components, radios, telephones and answering machines, and game systems with all the pieces, parts and cartridges. (Note on televisions: We accept only color TV's, B&W models are discarded. Only newer, digital, console TV's are accepted – older models simply do not sell). Being a resale store, we are normally unable to offer our customers return privileges for their purchases. Electronics generally represent an exception to this policy. Customers are provided a seven day return privilege so that they may adequately test their purchase. If they return the product as non-functional within the time allotted, the consignor's account is debited and the item is discarded without the consignor being contacted (with consignors numbering in the thousands, store personnel are unable to telephone consignors). Please be aware of this policy before consigning your electronics with Second& City.

ENTERTAINMENT CENTERS

A staple furniture item in most homes, entertainment centers are highly sought after and desirable items for the store. There tend to be two distinct categories for entertainment centers. First there are the ones which are typically sold unmade and come in boxes from discount retail furniture stores. Since we keep them together in the store, people know that when they buy them, they will not have to go to the trouble of putting them together themselves. They will sometimes even pay more because of this fact than they would for an identical new unit. Unfortunately, entertainment centers of this ilk are typically of poorer quality to begin with. The second category of entertainment center includes those well-made units with solid wood shelving or quality veneer and construction (usually larger as well). Although these do indeed sell well, they were expensive to begin with and do not sell for nearly as close to their original price as the lesser expensive units do.

are accepted anytime. Sets with less than four chairs do not sell nearly as well as those with four or more. We display sets with only one chair on top of the table and a sign declaring how many chairs and/or leaves come with the set.

TOOLS & HARDWARE

There seems to be a good demand and short supply of good, slightly used tools and hardware. We cannot properly merchandise small items such as a screwdriver or wrench. However, larger items and power tools which will accommodate our price tag will be accepted on consignment.

TOYS

Toys may be consigned, at the store's discretion, if they are in excellent condition with all working pieces and parts. New toy stores are able to offer such a broad and modern selection of toys at reasonable prices. This results in consignment toys selling for a small fraction of the new price, if at all. Larger outside play sets (i.e. Little Tikes, Step Two, etc.) are seasonal and as such are accepted only from April through July (see Seasonal) and because of their size are set at low starting prices (really large ones are not accepted at all).

UNIQUE ITEMS

In addition to the items described in the categories above, Second& City has consigned and sold many different and unique items as well. Some have sold quickly, others not; but all have helped to make the store eclectic and diverse in its offerings. Following is a short list of just some of these items: Snowboard, Cash Register, Telescope, Wine Press, Floor Model Video Game, Harpoon, Fencing Foil, Saddle for a Horse, Horseback Riding Helmet, Motorcycle Helmet, Privacy Screen.
